HOW TO MAKE MOUTH-WATERING PROFITS DURING THE COMING RECESSION---

WHILE YOUR FRIENDS GO BROKE!

Make no mistake about it, the “black boxes” (insiders) think a recession in the U.S. economy is barreling down the tracks toward all of us who are depending on a reasonable interest rate on our money to enjoy retirement (or continue to grow our nest egg for an enjoyable retirement later).

It’s not hard to figure out why. The U.S. government is broke---actually, beyond broke, with a total current and future indebtedness of over 200 TRILLION dollars! Dr. Laurence Kotlikoff of Boston University, generally acknowledged as the nation’s top Social Security expert, has been sounding an alarm over this situation for years.

Added to the mix are current USA/China trade war concerns and universally slowing regional economies across the globe. In other words, the governments of the world are drowning in debt and there’s no relief in sight. In many cases, central banks have initiated NIRP (negative interest rate policies) and ZIRP (zero interest rate policies). Imagine---depositing your money in a bank and having to pay the bank to keep it there! But this is exactly what has happened in Denmark, Switzerland and Japan. And these policies could be coming to the U.S. in the future.

Retirement used to be relatively risk-free. This was because your accumulated wealth could be put in tax-free municipal bonds, Treasury bonds or bank CDs and throw off enough income to allow you to live comfortably and securely. Those days are done. The reason is simple---and frightening. The government's desire to accommodate the "greater good" means that today's retirees, along with their pension/retirement plans, are going to be sacrificed to insure future economic growth---growth that is necessary to fund government pension plans for future generations of voters. And to Uncle Sam's way of thinking, an easy money environment (excessive money printing and low, low, low interest rates) is the key to making that happen.

Add this easy money environment to the lower rates the government will now be able to pay on loans it makes (Treasury bonds, etc.) and pension obligations like Social Security, and you can see how much money Uncle Sam intends to save on the backs of savers/retirees like you and us.

Ultimately, if we have an extended period of miniscule to zero interest rates, it will be the same situation we've seen in Europe and Japan. Our economy will be stuck in contraction or a no-growth mode. And stocks will only be able to head in one direction: down. As a matter of fact, we're already starting to see that in bank stock valuations. Even worse, there is more fuel being added to the fire. The Fed's been making aggressive rate cuts since 2019 even though the unemployment rate has been staying under 4%. Historically, every time the Federal Reserve has cut interest rates with unemployment under 4% the U.S. economy has plunged into recession within 1-2 years. Every time.

Also, there is now another harbinger of recession which has just occurred (July '21): the yield on the 10-year T-bond just dipped below 1.2% while inflation is at 5.39% (officially---based on private economic estimates it's closer to 8.5%)' This leads to only one conclusion: STAGFLATION is on the way. That's where you have a weak, struggling economy with high inflation. Think Jimmy Carter all over again!

When a recession hits and the stock market and economy tank, the "black boxes” will know what to do- - remember, they are the market. What will you do?

We at www.boostretirementincome.com would suggest the following as an insider approach that many investors might want to consider: find a conservative, extremely low-cost, highly-diversified investment vehicle that can make money when the markets are going up AND when they are going down. Or, if the markets are erratic and sideways, can simply let you slip into cash with no penalties or restrictions like so many other so-called investments.

Buying and holding, the old-fashioned way of investing, is becoming the kiss of financial death. Flexibility and trend following are the keys to continuing to earn a good, solid return on your core investment position while weathering any financial headwinds you come up against. Our trend following system has a goal of providing 10.5+ % per year while leaving you in complete control of your money (and with no onerous withdrawal penalties or other fine print land mines!).

The tools to do this are now available to the non-institutional investor like yourself after many years of being available only to the “black boxes” like the major investment banks and hedge funds. Find out more at our website (www.boostretirementincome.com)---including several important Special Reports that are completely free!

The perfect storm is on the way. Rates are not going up. You must find a simple, trend following system that allows you to stay completely in charge of your money while profiting in even the most volatile type of market conditions.

And you must follow the steady riders who can guide you to a dream retirement instead of a disappearing retirement dream.
